Am I Covered?

Q: We have recently purchased a camper. Will this camper be covered under our automobile insurance policy or will we have to notify our insurance company?

A: Your camper would be covered for liability insurance under your auto policy (provided that the auto pulling it is insured). Under the physical damage an acquired trailer is not covered unless at the time of acquisition the company insures all owned private passenger, farm and utility automobiles and trailers. Then the insured must notify the company within 30 days after such acquisition.

Q: Our house is situated in an area, where during a heavy rain, water comes up in the basement. To alleviate this problem, we have installed a sump pump. Our insurance agent has informed us that our Homeowners policy does not cover flood damage. However, we are wondering if there would be coverage in the event an electrical storm cut off the electricity and the pump could not work, causing flooding of our basement?

A: The Home Owners policy excludes damage by flood or rising water so there would be no coverage under the Homeowners policy. Flood coverage may be purchased separately so you should contact your agent.
